Moving my repositories from Bitbucket to Github

> ⓘ This page constitutes random notes from my work day as an Atlassian product consultant, put up in the vague hope they might benefit others. Expect rambling, reference to unsolved problems, and plenty of stacktraces. Check the date as any information given is likely to be stale.

Just a notice that I will be gradually moving my open source repositories from Bitbucket (http://bitbucket.org/redradish) to Github (https://github.com/redradishtech).

Github has always been faster and nicer, with better network effects. I've stuck with Bitbucket until now for its Mercurial support. With the abrupt termination of Mercurial support I have no further reason to stay. My non-public code will live https://meta.sr.ht/